POPULATION. Under this head Parkersburgh is the second city in the State, numbering about 7,000, of which 5,500 are white natives of this and other States of the Union, 1,000 of foreign birth, principally Irish and of foreign birth, principally Irlsh and German, and 500 colored. The county of Wood, of which Parkersburg is the capital, numbered 19,000 in 1870, and ranks second in the State in the rate of increase. The Virginia portion of the population has preserved many commendable traits of its ancestry, and the feeling towards strangers is one of unfeigned courtesy and hospitality. The lack of industrial enterprise, among that class, is the only unfavorable characterclass, is the only unfavorable character-istic, though little else could be expected from the older generations who were reared here in the easy days of slavery, and owe their present wealth principally to the fortuitous enchancement of real

IMPROVEMENTS.

The city is regularly laid out in blocks and squares, with wide streets, chiefly graded, surface drained, in part graveled and tastily lined with shade trees. A large proportion of business houses and dwellings are substantially built of brick, some of them with considerable taste and elegance. The general appearance of the city is cleanly, trim, and strikingly cheerful and attractive. Gas light was introduced in the city is cleanly. ance of pure water is supplied from public and private wells. A large and well paved wharf, fronting both rivers, and extensive freight depots facilitate the landing and shipping. A modern built Court House, market house, and a United States building for the accompandation of tates building for the accommodation o figure amony the principal improvements of the city. Among the religious and educational institutions may be mentioned ten churches of various denominations, Young Men's Christian Association, high grade and common free schools, the joans of the same denomination, two private academies for girls and son. Custom House, Postoffice and Federa for boys of the same denomination, two private academies for girls, and a superior academy for boys, and a lyceum or liter-ary society, holding weekly meetings. THE BUSINESS INSTITUTIONS consist of three banks, with an aggregate capital of $450,000; three building and loan associations, express and telegraph offices, everal navigation and transportation companies, railroad offices and four newspapers, of which or the control of t

Within the last six months, however, this production was reduced to nearly one cooper shops fluish about 500 tight bar-rels per day for the local and Cincinnati and the Pittsburgh markets. The Chem-ical laboratory manufactures the ingredi-ents for the refining of oil. Three sub-stantial foundries and machine shops supply an aggregate of shout sixty bands. employ an aggregate of about sixty hands, and the round house and repair shops of the railroad company about seventy-five hands. Two large merchant flouring mills produce a very superior article, and three first class steam saw mills are constantly engaged in manufacturing lumber of every description. With one of these connected an extensive door, blind constantly engaged in the connected an extensive door, blind when the connected an extensive door. is connected an extensive door, blind sash, scroll work and rough furnitur lastory, doing a large and profitable business. Also, a boat yard, for the construction of steamboats, barges, etc. Among the other industries employing timber as raw material, may be material, may be material, may mentioned a small furniture factory shops, and an ax-handle factory, and several wagon shops, and an ax-handle factory. One steam tannery finishes about 3,500 hides per annum, using tan bark at $6 to $7 per cord. Three chewing tobacco factories and several cigar shops turn out arge quantities for local consumption and hipment abroad. Two brick yards and wo potteries are supplied from banks of superior white and yellow clay within convenient reach. Several tinware and rooflog establishments and a brush factory complete the list of mechanical industries. The smaller trudes, as well as the usual commercial branches are the usual commercial branches,

It is mainly in manufacturing estab-lishments converting the raw materials ato articles of commerce and export, en-hanced by the added value of labor and kill, that this section of country is de-ficient, and to such this region offers inducements surpassed by few other points, if any, west of the Alleghenies.

Apples per peck. . . . the Ohio river, which has been in progress under the War Department since August last, has just been completed. The engineers have found and made a preliminary location of the line from the Cumberland to the fall of the Youghiogheny. The length of the line is eighty-five miles, and one hundred miles to where the slackater is expected to begin, at Connels-.ile. The summit is passed at an elevation of 1300 feet above Cumberland by a tunnel three and three-quarter miles oug. Ten inclined planes are provided on the eastern side, and four on the western. The estimate made last year is deemed to hold good—that is $25,000,000 quiet and unchanged. Corn—Dull; ear for a canal seventy feet wide, and seven deep, with locks 120 feet by 20, capable of passing boats of 200 tons.

COMMERCIAL AND FINANCIAL Wheeling Wholesale Market.

OFFICE DAILT INTELLISMORE, I Wednerday, Dec. 39. The leading merchandise markets have been rather dull during the past week. The grain markets have been very dull dud unsatisfactory, as in addition to a limited demand, there has been little or no margin for profit, prices are lower here relatively than at the source of supply. The grocery trade continues dull, as it usually is at this particular time, and the same is true of Flour, which has been dull and depressed all season. The hog product continues fairly active for this season of the year, but there is considerable apprehension in regard to the
